To Whom It May Concern,

My name is Steve Voris and I am a project engineer working for Myers Engineering out of Terre Haute, In. During the time frame of September, 2007 to February, 2009 I oversaw the Woodgate Sewer Project for the Terre Haute Sanitary District. The 2.2 million dollar project had Atlas Construction as the primary contractor. During the construction, I experienced a good working relationship with the foreman, Alan Blanchard and his crew. Their work achieved satisfactory progress while maintaining high quality workmanship. All appropriate testing for the sewers and manholes displayed no failures. Finish work or reclamation was timely and adequate. It should be noted that during the construction period for the project unusually wet conditions due to record rainfall was encountered and dealt with admirably by Mr. Blanchard and his crew.

All in all, my experience with Atlas Construction on this project was positive and I would recommend them as a quality organization promoting production while maintaining quality workmanship.

Yours very truly,
